Giving Thanks...In All Things!

On display in the French Academy of Science is a shoemaker's awl. An awl is a small, pointed tool that marks surfaces and pierces holes in leather. It looks ordinary, but behind the little awl lies a story of both tragedy and victory.

One day, it fell from the shoemaker's table and struck his nine-year-old son's eye. Within weeks, the child was blind in both eyes and had to attend a special school for the sightless.

At that time, the blind read by using large carved wooden blocks that were clumsy and awkward to handle. When he grew up, the shoemaker's son devised a new reading system of punched dots on paper. And to do it, Louis Braille used the same awl that had blinded him.

Even our toughest moments can be things we can be grateful for. As we approach the Holidays, God can use tragedies to produce victories. Think of how many blind people can communicate and read because of Louis Braille's determination. We can come alongside people in our community in a powerful way. On Sunday, November 8th, we will take up our Season of Giving offering to help us give Thanksgiving Baskets on Saturday, November 21st from 9 a.m.-10:30 a.m. and help others for Christmas. We can help bring a measure of thankfulness in all things to others in our community.

See you Sunday!
